

Sunny Cheung
Fellow for China Studies, Jamestown Foundation

Sunny Cheung is a Fellow for China Studies at the Jamestown Foundation, where he employs open-source intelligence to analyze Chinese politics, cross-strait relations, dual-use and emerging technologies, and security issues. He is also a Global Fellow at the Research Institute for Democracy, Society, and Emerging Technology (DSET), where he focuses on the global supply chain and semiconductor industry, and an International Strategic Forum (ISF) Fellow at the Special Competitive Studies Project (SCSP).

Prior to joining the Jamestown Foundation, Cheung conducted research for Janes Information Services, Project 2049, Academia Sinica, and the U.S. Department of State, with his work often addressing China's techno-authoritarianism, strategic policies, and geopolitical ambitions.

Cheung was named a Global Leader by the McCain Institute. He has held visiting fellowships at Stanford University, Johns Hopkins University, and National Sun Yat-sen University in Taiwan, where he explored the intersection of democracy, geopolitics, and emerging technologies. Cheung has testified before the U.S. Congress, the UK Parliament, and the Taiwan Legislative Yuan on topics ranging from China's technological ambitions and state policies to cross-strait security concerns.

His analysis and commentary have been widely published and featured in media outlets, including the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Reuters, Washington Post, DW News, Nikkei Asia, BBC, U.S. News, NBC News, NPR, Guardian, Fox News, Voice of America, Radio Free Asia, South China Morning Post, Strategist, and C-SPAN.

Mr. Cheung earned an M.A. in Strategic Studies from Johns Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) as a Dean's Scholar and holds a B.A. in China Studies and Politics from the University of Hong Kong.

Mr. Cheung has not previously testified before the Commission.